The Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986 requires each State to meet the same minimum standards for commercial driver licensing. The standards require commercial motor vehicle drivers to get a Commercial Driver's License (CDL). Both knowledge and driving tests are required; one or more knowledge test may be required, depending on the class of license and the endorsements needed. The CLD knowledge test(s) include(s):
- ◆ the general knowledge test must be taken by all applicants
- ◆ the passenger transport test must be taken by all bus driver applicants
- ◆ the air brakes test which you must take if your vehicle has air brakes
- ◆ the combination vehicles test which is required of you want to haul hazardous material or waste.
- ◆ the tanker test is required if you want to haul liquids in bulk.
- ◆ the doubles/triples test is required if you want to pull double or triple trailers.

*If an applicant passes the required knowledge tests, he/she can take the CDL skills tests; there are three types of CDL skills tests: the pre-trip inspection test, the basic control skills test, and the road test; an applicant must take these tests in the type of vehicle for which he/she wishes to be licensed.

DRIVER: TRUCK DRIVER

Truck drivers drive tractor-trailer trucks or operate other forms of heavy trucks to carry goods between terminals. Some drivers deliver a load to a nearby city, pick up another loaded trailer, and return it to their home base the same day, others make runs that take days to complete. On very long trips, they may work with a partner, taking turns driving. Some truck drivers have regular runs, and others have schedules that change from trip to trip. Heavy truck drivers drive single-body trucks that carry materials that weigh three tons or more. This type of truck includes dump, tow, flatbed, redi-mix, and tank trucks. Some of the trucks are mounted with special equipment.
